

If you never have a dream, you'll never have a dream come true

For fools rush in where angels fear to tread. – Alexander Pope

There are some things you learn best in a clam, and some in a storm. – Willa Cather

Success is 99 percent perspiration and 1 percent inspiration. – Thomas Edison

What a tangled web we weave/When first we practice to deceive. – Walter Scott

Hoping and praying are easier but do not produce as good results as hard work. – Andy Rooney

A little learning is a dangerous thing. – Alexander Pope

Nothing is as good as it seems beforehand. – George Eliot

You don't like weak women/You get bored too quick/And you don't like strong women/'Cause they're hip to your tricks. – Joni Mitchell

Prewriting:

What statement have I chosen as my thesis?

Does the incident I have chosen include some kind of tension?

Is the incident limited in time?

Does the incident evoke an emotional response in me?

Does the incident support the statement I have chosen?